9. Description: This house was built in 3 parts, 2 of log, and 1 of frame. The center & west parts are 1½ stories--each with 2 dormers on the main (south) facade. Both are 3 bays, the west part having the entrance in the eastern-most bay, and the central part having a central doorway. Between these 2 sections is a large chimney with a stone base & brick stack. In plan, each section is a single room with the staircase on the wass opposite the fire-place. Both parts are covered with asbestos siding over the clapboards.

The east section is 2 stories with a 3 bay, Federal facade, the entrance being in the west bay. On the east end is an internal brick chimney.

To the west of the house is a barn constructed of 2 large log cribs with a thrashing floor between. A log corn crib & a log smokehouse stand behind the house.

10. Significance: Representative of a 19th century upper Montgomery County farm is the Perry Etchison property. The Etchison family was widespread in that area of the county and gave their name to the small cross-roads community that stands nearby. In 1818 an agreement was made between Mahlon Chandlee and John Etchison for the sale of part of the land. Apparently the agreement was not honored, as 50 years later Perry Etchison brought suit against the Mahlon Chandlee heirs for breach of the bargain. The court decided in Etchison's favor and the Chandlee heirs were ordered to sell the farm to Etchison. It is believed that the original sections of the house were built during the mid-19th century. Etchison farmed the land for several years but soon fell into debt and was unable to pay his creditors. In 1880 the court ordered his land seized, and the county sheriff sold his farm at public auction for a small fraction of its actual worth. The land was bought by Kitty Hilton in 1880 and has remained in that family ever since. It is believed that the last person to live in the house was Oliver Snyder, Kitty's grandson. He sold the property in 1953 to his daughter, with the clause that he could live on the property for the remainder of his natural life. The farm is still used, although the house has been abandoned for many years.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

Representative of a 19th century upper Montgomery County farm is the Perry Etchison property. The Etchison family was widespread in that area of the county and gave their name to the small cross-roads community that stands nearby.

The farm was part of a tract called "Great Meadows" which was a resurvey of "Brookefield", "The Addition to Brooke Chance", and "Hard Bought". In 1797 George and Elizabeth Ellicott gave in trust 840 acres of "Great Meadows" to Hannah and Mahlon Chandlee.

Legal complications clouded the next transaction of the property. It seems that late in the year 1818 an agreement was made between Mahlon Chandlee and John Etchison for the sale of part of the land. Apparently the agreement was not honored, as 50 years later Perry Etchison brought suit against the Mahlon Chandlee heirs for breach of the bargain. The court decided in Etchison's favor and the Chandlee heirs were ordered to sell the farm to Etchison.¹ It is believed that the original sections of the house were built during the mid-19th century.

Etchison farmed the land for several years but soon fell into debt and was unable to pay his creditors. In 1880 the court ordered his land seized, and the county sheriff sold his farm at public auction for a small fraction of its actual worth.²

The land was bought by Kitty Hilton³ in 1880 and has remained in that family ever since. It is believed that the last person to live in the house was Oliver Snyder, Kitty's grandson. He sold the property in 1953 to his daughter,⁴ with the clause that he could live on the property for the remainder of his natural life. The farm is still used, although the house has been abandoned for many years.
